TELEPHONY WITHOUT WIRES

There is a Possibility of Talking America. Wireless telegraphy is at last an established fact, both scientifically and commercially.

A director of the Amalgamated radio-telegraphy company told a reporter that his company is ready to take orders for the installation of a wireless telephony system to cover a distance, up to 25 miles, over fairly flat land or over water.

About eight months ago we bought M. Poul-sen's invention, together with all his plant and experimental stations, and we have secured patents for the whole world with the exception of the

"We are now converting our sta tions at Oxford and Cambridge into wireless telephony stations on the Poulsen system, and when the work is completed, which will probably be in six weeks' time, we shall begin to experiment there. I am confident that we shall be successful in establishing wireless telephonic communication over the 60 miles which separate the two university towns, and I do not hesitate to express my conviction that in a few years' time we shall be able to speak across the Atlantic."—Lon-

SURNAMES NOT USED BY KINGS Only Christian - Names Signed Members of Royal Houses.

The origin of most royal houses was similar throughout Europe, and kings and their families, speaking broadly, never had or used surnames. They ilgned their Christian names alone. So universally was this the case that it became rigid etiquette that a person of royal birth should not use a surname, though there have been num bers of cases of dynasties, like our own Stuarts, like the Bernadotte dy-nasty of Sweden or like the Bonsparte family, who unquestionably and indubitably had inherited surnames. But it has always been a puzzle why the cadet members of our own royal house do not subscribe themselves as by their peerage designations, as do other peers However, the fact is they do not but it has not been discovered what are the rules which govern their signatures. The sovereign signs by the Christian name and usually adds "R." or "R. and I." Princes and princesses sign by their Christian names and sometimes, but not always, add the letter "P." When or why this is added or omitted is not known. But the habits of royalty lead others into strange happenings. There was an occasion upon which Queen Victoria after a "function" was asked no longer ago than 1854, on the Fourth of July, that E. B. Washburn's circus, playing in Boston, was packed to sufwrite "Victoria R. and I." Princess Henry of Battenberg then wrote "Beatrice P." The turn of the local mayoress came next and she signed "Elizabeth." The surname was hastly written in the following day, but too late to prevent the story gaining cur-

OUR DEBT TO ENGLISH COMMON LAW.

By British Ambassador Bryce. How great a part the conception of the legal rights of the subject or citizen against the crown or the state power played in English and Amer ican history is known. Still less need I dwell on the aunital impostance for the whole political system of the United States of that doctrine of limited powers which has been se distrably worked out in your constitution, nor of that respect for a defined legal right which supports their provisions,

JAWKH BRYER

The life of every nation rests mainly on what may be called its fixed ideas, those ideas which have become axioms in the mind of every citizen Now, it was mainly by the common law that these fixed and fundamental ideas were molded whereon the constitutional freedom of America, as of England, rests.

One hundred and thirty-one years have now pass since the majestic current of the common law became divided into two streams, which have ever since flowed in distinct channels. Many statutes have been enacted England since 1776, and many more enacted here, but the character of the common law remains es tially the same, and it forms the mental habits in those who study and practice it.

In nothing, perhaps, does the substantial identity of the two branches of the old stock appear so much as in the doctrines and practice of the law. It is a bond of union and of sympathy whose value can hardly be overtated. It is a bond of sympathy not least because it is a source of common pride.

EUROPE LIKELY TO LIMIT EMIGRATION.

By Senator Dillingham. The constant and long-continued drain upon the rural population, from which class the great majority of emigrants come, and the eneral prosperity which now prevails have produced a scarcity of farm labor, and, it is dained, the agricultural industry is suffering in consequence. Because of this scarcity of labor the condition of those remaining at home has, to a degree, been improved, but the general condition is causing much alarm among land owners, and a strong sentiment against emigration has de-

A very large proportion of male emigrants leave their native countries at a time when they are liable to military service, and this constitutes a strong objection to emigrants. On the contrary, it is true that, in some parts of Europe at least, emigration is not without its attending benefit, and this is recognised and considered. For example, there is a decided tendency on the part of alleus of certain nationalities to send back to their native countries a large part of their earnings in the United States. The total amount of money thus transferred each year is enormous, and the greater part of it goes to countries where it is much needed, and therefore highly appreciated.

Added to this is a desire on the part of nearly all the seaboard countries of Europe to build up a merchant marine, and as the carrying of emigrants is in many ssential to the success of such enterprises the attitude of such governments toward emigration is affected accordingly. These are the real forces that control the situation in Europe to-day, and the trend of affairs indicates that more attention and greater supervision of emigration on the part of the countries most concerned will result.

The church should take active steps to cure the physical and mental as well as the religious ills of the people. Its neglect of this vital work cannot be remedled too It has neglected its most important functions.

As a further and great cause of social unrest there comes that monstrous profusion and extravagance of expenditure which I am at times inclined to consider the worst note of our American civilization. As I grow older. I am more and more profoundly convinced that the impatience of the masses comes more from the abuse of wealth than from any other cause. Many of us who claim to be Christ's disciples are guilty in this partic ular. We fall to set the pace for the community in which we live by our own habits. The presence of luxury in the midst of tenement life has become to the average worker a source of irritation. He sees wealth open layishly around him, while he struggles in misery. Is it any wonder he becomes wrought up at what he considers the great injustice of society? The conditions of modern life are making the average workman a bondsman to machinery. When you have reduced a man to a mere machine it is impossible for him to sustain life except by artificial methods more destructive even than the industries in which he is employed.

Child Labor Law in Effect. The new eight-hour child labor law, which went into effect in New York State Oct. 1, will have an important bearing on the children of the State, as it is estimated that it will protect 700,000 children in New York City alone. This statute bits the employment of persons under 16 years of age in the factories be re 8 o'clock in the morning and after o'clock in the afternoon, or for more than eight hours in any one day. It is expected that this will materially affect ttendance at the public schools.

Mrs. Besant Against Moral Code. In her address before the twenty-first annual convention of the American sec-tion of the Theosophical Society a Chicago, Mrs. Annie Besant, the new world president of the organisation, took a pro-nounced stand against the adoption of s fixed moral code, and against the imposi-tion of penulties by the society for any individual action. She held that Thesophists are at one in their desire to raise the moral tone of society, and they differ only as to whether their ideas should be enforced by penalties. For herself, she would stand for the affirmation of their ideals and for efforts to live up to them. She said: "I appeal to the unfolding divinity in man, and not to the beggarly elements of coercive laws; I gladly affirm my brotherhood with the lowest, as I reverently hope to be accepted as brother by the highest." She said further that none of the great religious had a penalty enforcing its commandments by exclusion, but, on the contrary, they regarded it as a primary duty to try to improve their evil-doers. Sh thought the Theosophical Society would not wish to copy the example of those churches which employ heresy trials and excommunications. Such a code would be the denial of brotherhood. . In illustrating her point of view in one of her talks, Mrs. Besant used the personality of John D. Rockefeller as an example, saying that in his next incarnation he would probably reappear as a highly developed and perfected individual: in fact. almost angel. She explained that he would probably retain all of his capacity for doing things, and slough off the baser motives and aims actuating his present career. The society voted by a large majority against the proposed code.

Prairie Schooner on Broadway New York City recently witnessed the novel spectacle of an old-fashioned prairie schooner drawn by a yoke of oxen pass-ing down Broadway. This outfit was the property of Ezra Meeker, who had come all the way from Payallap in the State of Washington, traversing the old Oregon trail, over which he went to the Pacific coast in 1850, from his home in Ohio. Mr. Meeker's purpose in making the trip east is to arouse public sentiment in fa-vor of a bill which he will have introduced in Congress at its next session, to build a permanent concrete road along the of the pioneers who constituted the advance guard to the West. It is his intention to go to Orster Bay to see the President, and will afterwards proceed to Washington.

War Until End of Time, In a recent address in the army change on Governor's Island, Bishop Henry C. Potter expressed the belief that while the objects of The Hague conference were very beautiful, they were only a dream. He called the armics of the world the police of the world, contending that their existence was as necessary to the safety of the globe as was the existence of the police to the safety of a man in his home at night. New Skyscraper Limit.

In the opinion of Ernest Flags, architect of the new Singer building at New York, the tower of which is the highest hullding in the world for occupation the probable limit of height for these buildings in New York City will be 1,000 feet, with a tower 100 feet square, or nearly 400 feet higher than the Singer building. Differing with the president of the New York fire underwriters, who recently varned the public that there was danger of a great confingration in the upper stories of the tall buildings beyond the reach of existing fre-fighting apparatus, Mr. Flagg says that the only limit is financial practicability. The insists that Policeman Anton Bachman was shot Mr. Flags says that the only limit is and killed by Peter Garrity, a plumber, in Cincinnati. Some people call Furum a great min. Others refer to Feruma as a great catarrh remedy.

Which of these people are right? Is it more proper to call Person a catarrh remedy than to call it a tonic? Our reply is, that Peruna is both a tonic and a catarrh remedy. Indeed there can be no effectual catarrh rem edy that is not also a tonic.

In order to thoroughly relieve any case of catarrh, a remedy must not only have a specific action on the mucons membranes affected by the catarrh, but it must have a general tonio action on the nervous system.

Catarrh, even in persons who are otherwise strong, is a weakened con-dition of some mucous membrane. There must be something to strengthen the circulation, to give tone to the arteries, and to raise the vital forces. Perhaps no vegetable remedy in the Frince are expected to advance one-third over the average price for the past five years, as the crop is only a little more than one-third of last year's. Yeas and beans will share in the general upward trend.

The Cotton Spinners' Congress. Growers of cotton and manufacturers of cotton goods from seven different nations have met in convention at Atlanta. Ga., James R. Macoll of Providence, R. Ga., James E. Macoli of Providence, K. I., presiding. Among other reforms fa-vored by the convention was the advocacy of a uniform bill of lading. President Macoll said that ways must be found to enable the planters to sell direct to the spinners, without losing the profit of the middlemen. The planter must learn to grade, carry and finance his cotton as the Think Lightly of It. The road to home happiness is said to lie over small stepping stones. So small sometimes are the causes of our unhappiness that we wonder the consequences can be so great. One great pallintive is the determination by every member of the family not dwell on the circumstances, whatever they may be, which are alike sad to all. If it be poverty let it be cheer fully and silently borne; if it be the ill temper of grandpa try to make a joke of it. If it be something infinitefamily circle to ignore it. Accept ever little enlivening circumstance. Let in all the sun and air. Work on cheerily and hopefully, knowing that there is the ray of sunshine somewhere that has only to be looked for to be found.

Shows Model of Structure Which He Says Will Revolutionize Building -Man Kills Sweetheart in Religtous Meeting.

In greeting the members of the American Electro-Chemical Society and showing them through his laboratories and manufacturing plants at Orange, N. J., Thomas A. Edison showed his visitors a three-arroy house, "I have had New York architects working on the plans of that," he said, "and am ready to begin on it myself. In fact, I already have made the molds for the win-dow casings. Next summer I will build just such a house within twelve hours at an expense of $1,000, and the man who labors on it will know that it was built on his basis of wage—$1.50 a day What I am going to inaugurate," he said "la this. Then they will allow six days for settling and drying and the family may move in The cust iron mold of that house may be used on countless other buildings. The economic value of this rests, for one in stance in that the house will never be in need of repair. The roof and floors will be of concrete; the concrete will be made on the site; there will be no fire insurance; as another instance of its saving value, the man who owns the house can let his children back at it with intehetand axes and lose nothing. There will be no wood in it save for a strip upon which carpets may be tacked." All of the more cent structures in the group of labora-ries of Mr. Edison's plant are of cement made by him.

the Woman as a Shield. George Smiley, aged 17 years, shot and killed his mother, Mrs. Lizzie Scholfer, aged 42 years, in their home at 2043 Myrtle avenue, Kansas City, at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday morning. In a statement to the officers Smiley says he shot his mother in defending her against a burglar. Smiley, who is the woman's son by her first hu band, told a dramatic story to the police. The woman had grappled with the in-truder and urged Smiley to get his shotgun. A moment later the burglar had freed himself and was making an attempt to escape when Mrs. Scholfer orde Smiley to shoot. As Smiley raised his gun, a single harreled affair, and fired, the burgher, he says, pushed his mother in front of him. She received the full charge, dying within a few moments. The bur-glar escaped, leaving no clew. Smiley was held for investigation. An investigation of the house made by the police showed the burglar had taken $135 in money and some jewelry and had escaped through a window. The police believe Smiley's story and he probably will be released.

Named by Roll and Anthroelte Concerns in Answers Are Made Defendants Trace Brown ville Shots to Soldiers' Guns.

In an amended bill filed by attorneys for the United States government in the equity proceedings in Philadelphia against the alleged anthractic coal trust forty-five additional defendants are named. All the new defendants were mentioned in the answers filed by the original defend-ants. They are named in the amended bill on the ground that they were connected with the previously named coal roads and mining companies by certain financial transactions and coal purchase contracts. Subnoenas will be issued for the last named defendants, who will be examined by government aftorneys on all nutters mentioned in the government's petition for an injunction against the alleged combination. Most of the new de-fendants are coal companies, but they include in addition the Mercantile Trust Company of New York City, the Pennsyl-Company for Insurance on Liv and Granting Annuities, Mrs. Sarah Drexel Van Rensselaer, Joseph, George R, and Emma J. THE POSTAL CARD CRAZE.

What Was Originally a Fad Has De come a Great Business,

Three years ago souvenir or picture postal cards were on sale in al stores or shops in the United States To day they may be had in $0,000 different places. What was originally a fad has become a great business,

The picture postal eard flourished for years on the continent. Every small town or inn had a pretty souvenir of this Inter already lost $20,000 in a value attempt to amother it will testify.

Yet its people, so far as possible, seem determined to remain and make the best of their misfortune

The explosions at the powder mills came without warning. What caused the first one is a mystery and may never be explained.

Once the combustion had started there was no stopping it and one by one seven mills were shot into the all in splinters. Two hundred men were employed at the works, but luckily only seventy-five were at their labors when the first explosion took place.

Big Mill in Shattered.

The big press mill was destroyed first. This was at 9:15 o'clock. The shock and detonation were indescriba ble. The ground shook for miles around -it is reported that the effect was felt at a distance of 200 miles—buildings rocked as if riding a seismic awell. And then within two minutes

Tobacco Trust Makes Answer.

The American Tobacco Company has filed its answer in the suit begun by the United States Government last July. The answer of the trust and of the co-defendants, including Thomas F. Ryan, James B. Duke, Oliver H. Payne and Anthony N. Brady, directors, is that while the trust has combined many companies and Duke, Oliver H. Payne and Anthony interests into one it has no power to control the industry in which it engages. The trust holds that so long as brands of cigars remain in existence competition cannot be destroyed, because it is a strug-gle between brands, and not between factories. It holds that brands have their strength in the fact that tobacco is a luxury, the consumer desiring only that his taste shall be satisfied. The trust denies of this social theory believe that a womthat the United Olgar Stores Company, that the United Oigar Stores Company, which aims to monopolise the retail trade, was started by the American Tobacco Company. It credits this wast retail business to George J. Whalen and associates, and says that they entered the field in spite of the opposition of the trust. Bernard Shaw Defends Polygamy. The columns of the London Times have recently contained an animated corre an should not be deprived of the dut-and privilege of motherhood for mere laci of a husband. Sir George Birdwood, a noted authority on Indian affairs, wrot to the Times that the results of the pe-culiar practices referred to was an improvement in the race, the selection of fathers being on the principle of the best breeding. This aroused a storm of protest against what was denominated a "revolting and abhorrent" idea. Thereupor George Bernard Shaw took up the cudgele in defense of the Brahmin practice, point ing out its advantages from a social and physiological atandpoint over the conven-tionalisms of English society. In explaining the Brahmin view he said: Bengalis hold that it is a part of the general purpose of things that women should bear children, and that childless-

Every pound of weight lost entalls the task in order to regain the lost waste and compensate for the time. No farmer should be satisfied to have his stock at a standstill.

Hitching the Colt.

When first hitching a colt always w a harness with a breeching, so that he will get used to it along with the oth harness. Before hitching a colt in the cart it is best to put a set of hopples on him. This can easily be made by taking a set of stroos, which should be strong and large enough to pass around the fetlock. These strong should have rings in them. To the rings attach a rope about twelve feet iong. Pass the rope from each one of straps up through the girth and back to the seat. This will be found to be very helpful in case anything should go wrong and the colt should become unmanageable so far as reining him by the bit is concerned. Should enything happen just pull on the rope and thus prevent his running He should not be pulled up too severe ly, as sometimes by so doing you may wolse or skin his legs. This will also be found very helpful in teaching the wilt to stand, as be will soon discover that you have a power over him which it impossible for him to get W. J. Kennedy, Iowa Experifour nounds of blue vitriel and four to five pounds of lime to fifty gallons of water, beginning spraying immediately, and repeating the spray at eight to ten days' intervals till crop is mature. The more frequent spraying is necessary later in the season. The increase in 1906 from apraying as above, was forty to forty-five bushels marketable potatoes per acre upon the late crop. Four to six sprayings may set be required upon very late plantings. Delay in treatment is unwise.

For earlier treatments, when plants are smaller, about fifty gallons of mixture will be needed per acre, but from this time forward about 100 gallons per acre or even more will be required for efficient treatment. With ordinary four-row sprayers it will be wise to go twice over the fields, moving in opposite direction the second time after first spray has dried.

The Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture has been collecting informs tion with a view to ascertaining the relative proportion of the two sexes of pigs at birth. Reports were received from eighty-two breeders, located in twenty-three different States and territories, representing eight different breeds — Berkshire, Chester Whites, Duroc-Jerseys, Hampshires, Large Yorkshires, Ohio Improved Chesters, Poland-Chinas and Tamworths. On thousand four hundred and seventy seven litters were reported, with a to tal of 18,285 pigs, of which there were 0.660 boars and 8.025 sows. This show the proportion to be almost equal, there being 1.005 boars to every 1.000 sows or 201 boars to every 200 sows.

Until steam and electricity come into common use the farm hors will ever be an indispensable factor in agricultural production. The farmer with a plow without the horse would be in as bad a fix as to have the horse without the plow. And when we con sider the treatment of the faithful and indispensable farm horse receives from so large a number that are absolutely dependent upon his work-how he is overworked and underfed—it is enough to make humanity weep.

The Society for the Prevention o Cruelty to Animals has accomplished a great good in many of the large citby protecting the 'lame and the halt," and the half-starved and unmer cifully overburdened beasts of burden that are being cruelly imposed upon: but this great work of humanity should not be permitted to stop at what has been done, but extended to every nook and corner of the continent where work animals of any kind employed. Every State Legislature and town and city council should enact stringent laws with severe penalties and have officers promptly enforce them in every instance, where violated of overworking underfeeding and overtaxing any horse, mule or ox in the land.

TO-DAY'S OPPORTUNITY.

By Rev. William Carter, D. D. Now all these things are written for our admonition upon whom the ends of the world are come.- I. Corinthians

If greater opportunities bring greater responsibilities, then those that are resting upon us to-day are certainly endous. The progress of the ages has been cumulative and has raised this age until it stands as the highest peak of civilization, the keystone of all the ages, the very crown jewel in the diadem of time. Therefore, "these things are written for our admonition upon whom the ends of the world are monition are necessary now? Because in this "end of the age," in this twentieth century of privilege and development, there is so much more in wived. It means more to lose a jewel than a jackknife. It means more to wreck & trans-Atlantic liner than a fishing smack. It means more, infinitere, to waste and wreck a life frought with such tremendous possibilities than to waste and wreck a mere existence. Therefore, the admonition which is sounded is upon every soul.

Why is it that such warning and ad-

This warning and admonition is also specially necessary now because in this age of opportunity and development we can do much more than ever was possible before. When God called Moses to lead his people out of Egypt Moses began to excuse himself because of inefficiency, but God, said: "What is in thine hand?" and Moses looked and, behold, it was a shepherd's rod. Not a very great weapon of offense or defense, but with that potent rod he vrought all those marvelous signs and wonders, and at last delivered Israel

What is in thine hand, man of the orld to-day? A business opportunity, n social power, a moral obligation, a leader's ability, a skilled workman's tools, all the possibilities of a trained hand or eye or intellect. Make an inventory of your equipment and then tell me how you are using it.

What is in this hand, business man? It is a bankbook, one of the mightlest weapons for good or evil that is in the world to-day. How are you using it?

What is in thine hand, man of the corld? Look closely again, for, behold, it is a ballot. Remember thenand I say it advisedly and reverently -that next to the bible the ballot is most powerful instrument for working rightcousness in the whole land today.

What is in thine hand, are, what is in thine arms, womanhood of to-day? A child's dear form? Ah, then, let me say yours is the greatest power after Over that life you reign supreme To you it will go for guidance: to you it will look for ideals. See to it, motherhood of to-day, that those ideals are pure and true, are grand and no ble, and then you may be sure of it that the manhood of to-morrow will be better than that of to-day.

need also to heed the warning and admonitions of the past and of the word of God, because even the little that we do now will count for so much nore than ever before. Every deed that we do now has the weight of all the ages behind it. All the experience, all the developments of the past tell on our efforts now and multiply them a thousand fold.

Don't say that you can't do anything Don't be trying to frighten yourself by asking what is the biggest thing you can do and then excuse yourself by Ask yourself, rather, the question, "What is the least thing I can do?" and, starting with that, let the big things take care of themselves.

THE GREAT INSPIRATION.

By Henry F. Cope. "Leaving us an example that we should follow his steps."-I. Peter 2:21. Christianity is distinguished and dominated by the ideal of the life and haracter of Jesus of Nazareth; it is a philosophy and a system of individual and social ethics under the inspiration of a glowing ideal. No matter how greatly its people may differ on other points, all are agreed in recognizing in Jesus the fairest of the sons of men. There never was a time when the thought of this life was more potent than it is to-day. Men think of him as a fellow being, one who went about loing good, who looked out on life with the windows of his soul unsullied and who lived out ever the hollest and highest that came to him.

The thought of such a one has be come so real to men that they do not stop to argue about his existence as once they did. If it were possible india putably to disprove the historic Christ. men still would cherish, as highly as ever, the ideal, the vision of such a life, and in their hearts would know that such a picture could only have been born of such a person.

This goodly, glorious man no longer is one who now sits on the throne of heaven. Men are not particularly concerned as to whether he is artificially glorified and perpetuated by some diine decree. He has crowned himself in the glory of a pure and beneficent character; he has perpetuated himself in human loves and admiration.

Because he once showed himself as the friend of all, the pure highsouled friend of the downtrodden and the outcast, the strong, invigorating friend of the rich and successful, he to-day walks by many a man as bls unseen friend, and in busy must or office men feel the presence of a heavenly gines".

It has come as a new revelation to the world that the supreme religious soul of the ages should be so tenderly, naturally human. We cry "Father!" with a new sense of relationship and fellowship when we see the likeness of the father in the face of such a

We are coming to believe that just what the great friend of mankind was so is the great father of us all to us all, that just as the Son of the most high moved amongst men seeking to help, cheering, comforting, loving, so is the eternal spirit moving in our world, going about doing good. Once every effort of the theolo-glan was bent to setting this majestic figure apart from manking, to secure him sovereignty over us by separation from us. How different is that from the simple pictures drawn of him, from the naturalness of his life, from the love which he had for homes and human friendships, from the life which earned the illuminating rebuke of being called a friend of sinners.

It is a good thing for us all often er that there has been such a life, that one born in poverty and nknown, far removed from cer culture and wealth, living the hard life of a pensant, knowing all our temptstions and weaknesses, yet should open his life so fully and completely to spiritual influences as to become to all ages the greatest of all spiritual lead-

 New Primary Bill.

The new primary bill prepared by the Attorney General's department was introduced by Senator Peck. A good deal of work has been done on the new bill, the idea being to clear up the ambiguous fea-tures of the present law and to clearly de-fine the various provisions so as to have a workable act. Under the Attorney Gen-eral's bill the first Tuesday in September is fixed as general primary day except in cities which do not elect municipal officers in November, when the date is fixed for the second Tuesday prior to the municipal election. All county conven-tions must be held within fifteen days after the primary on a day to be fixed by the State central committee. The State convention is to be held within forty days after the primary. It is expressly provided that unless candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor receive 40 per cent of the enrolled vote at the primary election the nominations shall be made by the State convention. All voters are com-pelled to enroll under some party desig-nation to be entitled to vote and various mation to be entitled to vote and various enrollment days are provided for. Where part of any district has adopted the primary system it is not made compulsory to submit the proposition to the whole district, but it may be done on petition of 20 per cent of the enrolled voters. Nominations of candidates for United States Sensor, and handled States Senator are to be made by primary

Special Session Ends The special session of the State Legislature called by Gov. Warner to pass a workable primary election law ended at midnight Friday. A primary law was passed, but it is so far from being such as the Governor demanded that he denounced some of its provisions in vigor-ous terms in a special message to the Legislature Friday evening. He will sign the bill, because it provides for a single primary day instead of several and because it permits an expression of the vot-ers on the election of United States Sen-ators. He denounced the law because of a provision which restores the caucus aystem in many counties for the election of delegates to conventions, and because of the retention of the 40 per cent clause soverning the nomination of candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor. The primary bill was drawn by the "box-er" Senators, who offered it with the ul-timatum that the bill must be passed as drawn or no primary legislation would be enacted. The anti-lobby bill and the tele-graph and telephone tax bill, both recom-mended by the Governor, failed to pass. No Bush Work Wanted

Up to Monday practically no thought had been given to the other subjects of legislation outside of the primary elec-tion bills that this extra session is called upon to eaact, although nearly half the 20 days (allowed under the law for spe-cial sessions, for if held longer, pay is shut off) had then been used up. The other important bills waiting for considsout on) and then been used up. The other important bills waiting for consideration must either be rushed through without thought, or left by the wayside. JULUNGIN PEARL HUNTING.

Digging Clams for the Valuable Gem Twenty Years Ago.

Twenty years ago a pearl crase started in Wisconsin. Every one dug clams, says Outing Magazine. Mills from the mill ponds that the people might get the mussels more easily. Previous to 1895, according to the government report, $300,000 worth of pearls were found in Wisconsin mear river alone yielding $19,000 be-tre becoming exhausted. At that time river pearls were not valued as highly as "orientals," but now they are eagerly bought by jewelers. Bevlished at various points on the Mississippi river. Men collected clams and sold the shells to these factories to be made into pearl buttons. Some pearls were found and another crase soon started. Men flocked to the river from all walks of life. White men, red men, black men, brown men and women, all came, though after a month of sun, wind and river water coffee, racial characteristics were not onspicuous.

In the summer of 1902 it was said that 20,000 men were clamming on the Mississippi and its tributaries. In the spring of the next year the rush was even greater, but this did not last long. Owing to the overfishing of the previous season, the market was already overstocked and the price of shells had dropped so low that by July comparatively few boats were July comparatively few boats were at work. Many enormous beds that were thought to be inexhaustible had given out, the buyers rejected so many (only about a quarter of those caught were salable, even at the latpart of the season) the river was Not to the Aeronaut, but to the Man on Earth Below Him.

It must be more than two years ago that I called attention in this column to the danger and nulsance that would he likely to ensue if ballooning became popular, but it is only recently that the public have awakened to the fact that the possibilities mentioned are likely to become stern realities.

Already we read of people quietly lounging in their gardens being wellnigh blinded by showers of sand, of conservatories being smashed, of houses unroofed and chimneys demol-ished, of trees uprooted, of fences damaged and of cattle injured by the action of the grannel action of the grapnel,

Of course, as ballooning becomes more general such accidents will be more frequent and more serious. An inconsiderate aeronaut is far more difficult to catch and control than a roadhog, because he may perpetuate his annoyances from an inaccessible distance. It is really high time—before this latest nuisance becomes so vast as to be uncontrollable—that stringent measures should be taken for its
